Argentina - on the brink of major change?

2015 is an electoral year in Argentina: major elections for executive and legislative bodies at federal and state level will take place. This election cycle will culminate with the presidential election in October 2015. After two consecutive mandates president Christina Kirchner, who succeeded to her husband Nestor Kirchner as head of state, is facing increasing criticism for her domestic and international agenda. Thus the question: will there be major change in this election year? "We hope so!", answered our partners from the election observation network "ser fiscal" during their visit in Brussels.

US-Geheimdienste: Ist eine Kontrolle möglich?

Anderthalb Jahre nach den Enthüllungen von Edward Snowden hat die US-Regierung einen Bericht veröffentlicht, der neue Richtlinien zur Datenspeicherung der US-Nachrichtendienste beinhaltet. Die Meldung erregte in der deutschen Öffentlichkeit kaum Aufsehen. Das ist bedauerlich, denn anders als auf dieser Seite des Atlantiks wahrgenommen, schlugen die Enthüllungen von Edward Snowden auch in Amerika hohe Wellen.

Dahrendorf Taskforce Publication Series

Access to information is essential in a liberal democracy. But where do we draw the line between open information and the individual's right to privacy and personal integrity? Jacob Dexe analyses this conflict in his paper, which is part of the Dahrendorf Publication Series. The researcher at SICS Swedish ICT and formerly at Fores draws a clear contrast between the individual's right to be forgotten and the desirable state of open information.

FNF retreat in Washington

For the first biannual retreat in 2015, our regional office met in Washington, D.C. We were honored to welcome Dr. Wolfgang Gerhardt, Chairman of the Friedrich Naumann Foundation for Freedom, to our round. Together with colleagues from Brussels, Prague, Potsdam and Washington, we discussed current political developments in our project region. We also exchanged ideas and best practices and brainstormed about new projects. In different side-events, were able to strike up and deepen our transatlantic friendships.
